If you see the product is good then go for big amount. But if it does not suit you try a different type of pheromone. Experimenting about this will give the better result for finding the most suitable pheromone in your case. You can be sure that pheromones for women are really the right thing to raise attraction. If you use it you will be able to obtain the result yourself.

After all, if sonar works for bats and dolphins and also for the world's naval forces, why would it not be true that sex hormones that attract mates in the insect world would signal similar actions at work on the human level? It is known that some individuals seem to have potent 'sex appeal' that physical appearance alone does not account for. There are people who keep their attraction to the opposite sex long after their first bloom of youth has faded.

As you might have guessed, much of the nature of this chemical process deals with the sense of smell, and for the most part that is correct. However, it is important to note that just because pheromones might interest your sense of smell does not necessarily mean that you will understand it or even be completely aware of it. Female sex pheromones, for example, are used to talk to the males of the species that she is fertile and capable of bear kids. Obviously, in evolutionary terms, this is simply for the propagation of the species. It is often coupled with behavioral disturbances, like when a cat is in warmth. Men, on the other hand, might emit a pheromone that tells females they are strong and able to care for themselves. This clarifies why some women actually benefit from the smell of sweat, because it is an instinct that says he is physically able to do the necessary work.

Pheromones are natural chemicals in animals that are secreted through the skin in order to communicate with other members of the same species. This communication can be for any number of reasons, but the base understanding is that it is a great evolutionary tactic that allows different species to cohabitate with or avoid each other peacefully. For example, some pheromones act as territorial markers, letting other species members know that this is where you have chosen to be able to situate oneself or your family. Many people who have domestic pets appreciate this process. This same process can be used by men to attract women now.
